

CONTRIBUTORS / COLLABORATEURS

Sean Cadigan teaches in the Department of History, International Development Studies and the Marine Affairs Program at Dalhousie University.

Alfred Edwards was born 1917 in London, Canada. He has been married for 58 years to Elsie, and has one daughter Mrs. D.V. Goldberg who practices Psychiatry as Dr. D.V. Edwards.

Leon Fink is the vice-president, Teaching Division, American Historical Association and teaches at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. His most recent book is Progressive Intellectuals and the Dilemmas of Democratic Commitment (1997).

Denis Harrisson is Professor of Industrial Relations at the Université du Québec à Hull. His current interests include the study of organizational transformation process, occupational health and safety and technological change from a constructionist perspective. Recent publications have appeared in Recherches sociographiques, Relations industrielles, Gestion, Economic and Industrial Democracy, et Technologie de l'information et société.

Sarah Mercer Judson is an assistant professor in the History Department at the University of North Carolina-Asheville. She is currently working on a book based on her dissertation entitled "Building the New South City: African American and White Clubwomen in Atlanta, 1895-1930."

Nicole Lang est professeure d'histoire au campus d'Edmundston de l'Université de Moncton depuis 1991. Ses recherches portent principalement sur l'histoire des travailleurs et du syndicalisme au Nouveau-Brunswick au cours du 20e siècle.

Michael Lewis, Associate Professor, History at Michigan State University, is the author of Rioters and Citizens: Mass Protests in Imperial Japan. He is presently revising a manuscript on regional resistance and national integration in prewar Japan.

Kim Moody is the director of Labor Notes, an independent labour monthly in the US, and author of Workers in a Lean World (Verso, 1997).

Carolyn Podruchny is a doctoral candidate in the History Department at the University of Toronto. Her dissertation is entitled "'Sons of the Wilderness': Work, Culture and Identity Among Voyageurs in the Montreal Fur Trade, 1780-1921."

Ellen L. Ramsay is currently on leave from her position as Assistant Professor at York University. She is researching the relationship between art and the secular movement in 19th century Canada.

Rennie Warburton is Chair of the Department of Sociology at the University of Victoria.