

CONTRIBUTORS / COLLABORATEURS

Paul Blackledge is author of Friedrich Engels and Modern Social and Political Theory (2019), Marxism and Ethics (2012), Reflections on the Marxist Theory of History (2006), and Perry Anderson, Marxism and the New Left (2004). He is co-editor of Virtue and Politics: Alasdair MacIntyre's Revolutionary Aristotelianism (2011), Alasdair MacIntyre's Engagement with Marxism (2008), Revolutionary Aristotelianism (2008), and Historical Materialism and Social Evolution (2002).

Alison Braley-Rattai is associate professor in the Department of Labour Studies at Brock University.

John Calvert was an associate professor at Simon Fraser University until his retirement in 2021. He researched labour and climate issues as part of a series of SSHRC grants, including Adapting Canadian Work and Workplaces to Climate Change. He is currently part of an international research project to promote climate literacy in the apprenticeship program for building workers.

Martin Gallié est professeur au Département des sciences juridiques de l'UQAM. Il est également membre du Groupe interdisciplinaire et interuniversitaire de recherche sur l'emploi, la pauvreté et la sécurité sociale (GIREPS) et de la Communauté de recherche-action sur les droits économiques et sociaux (COMRADES).

Rhonda L. Hinthner is a history professor and practising public historian at Brandon University. She is the author of Perogies and Politics: Canada's Ukrainian Left, 1891–1991 (2018).

Thierry Nootens est professeur titulaire au Département des sciences humaines de l'Université du Québec à Trois-Rivières (UQTR) et codirecteur du Centre interuniversitaire d'études québécoises (CIEQ). Ses principaux champs de recherche sont l'histoire de la famille, des femmes, du droit civil et des tribunaux.

Larry Savage is professor in the Department of Labour Studies at Brock University.

Charles Smith is an associate professor of political studies, St. Thomas More College, University of Saskatchewan. He is also the president of the Canadian Association of Work and Labour Studies.

David Sobel was a self-employed consultant in the labour movement from 1983 to 1999. He joined the Ontario Ministry of Labour as a policy adviser in 2000, specializing in employment standards and labour relations, and later moved to Consumer Protection Ontario. He retired from the Ontario Public Service in 2019.